Follow post-interview procedures

• Upon completion of your interview, an “International Protection Applicant Identification Card” will be issued for you and each family member, free of charge. The validity period of this document is mentioned on the card. You have to approach the Provincial Directorate of Migration Management to extend the card before its expiry date.
• Within 6 months after your interview, a decision may be issued on your application. You will be notified by the Provincial Directorate of Migration Management in case of delay in issuance of the decision.
• Your status as a “refugee” or “conditional refugee” or “subsidiary protection beneficiary” will be recognized if it is assessed that you are in need of international protection.

What will happen if your international protection application is rejected?
• You can submit a written appeal to the International Protection Evaluation Commission (IPEC) in 10 days.
• You can also lodge a case before the Administrative Court in 30 days. In some cases, appeal period is 15 days which will be indicated in the decision notified to you.
• You have to inform the officers about the case you lodged before the court. This will suspend execution of deportation until the time of a final decision issued on your application.
• You have the right to be represented by a lawyer in the appeal procedure. If you do not have financial means, you can apply to the Bar Association in your province to request legal aid.
• You have to inform the officers about the case you lodged before the court. This will suspend execution of deportation until the time of a final decision issued on your application.
• You will be allowed to stay in Turkey during the appeal and court procedure.

A withdrawal decision will be issued and assessment of your case will be suspended in the situations below:
• You withdraw your application in writing.
• You do not attend your interview three consecutive times without any excuse.
• You do not comply with your notification duty three consecutive times without any excuse.
• You abscond from the place where you are held under administrative detention.
• You do not go to your designated place of residence in 15 days.
• You leave your designated place of residence without permission.
• You refuse to share your individual data.
• You fail to fulfil your obligations at the registration and interview stages.

You can submit an appeal against the withdrawal decision to the International Protection Evaluation Commission in 10 days. You can lodge a case before the Administrative Court in 30 days.

The notification regarding the withdrawal decision will be done to the address recorded by you with the Provincial Directorate of Population and Citizenship. You will be considered as notified even if you do not receive the notification in person.

Please be aware that missing the timelines regarding appeal procedures will result in issuance of a deportation order.

!!! IMPORTANT !!!
Applying for international protection in Turkey will give you the opportunity to access a range of services and support.
Please apply at the Provincial Directorates of Migration Management in the shortest possible time after your arrival in Turkey.
